Take some time to review all your journal entries and reread your core sources.
Look for the most important ideas.

What are the most important ideas?
What helped me learn the most about my question?
Use a highlighter to mark what’s most important.

Create a chart of your most important ideas.
Position your question on your chart.
Place your ideas around your question.
Use lines and arrows to show connections between the ideas.
Highlight the themes that are emerging.

Take your chart to the inquiry circle to help you see themes in your enquiry.
Consider ways to communicate what you have learned.
